

An All-Around Guide to Seniors Downsizing

Are you or a loved one struggling to get around a too-big house? Many older adults find that their family homes feel wrong for them as they enter retirement. From the financial load of paying for taxes and utilities to the physical difficulties of getting around, there are many challenges a large home presents. Take a look at why some seniors downsize, as well as how to make the process smooth, to see if it's the right next step for you or your loved one.

Family Homes Are Often Too Big and Hard to Navigate

A Big House Could Cost More Than You Think

Hidden Dangers in the Home for Seniors

Neighborly Home Care Explores 5 Challenges Seniors Face Living at Home Alone

Seniors Deserve a Safe and Comfortable Living Space

Senior Home Safety: 25 Tips to Make Home Safe

How to Help an Elderly Loved One Downsize

Financing May Be Simpler Than You Think

How Much House Can I Afford?

How to Get a Mortgage Once You Are Retired

Veterans Can Get Mortgage Help Through VA Loans

How to Organize, Pack, and Store While Moving

Downsizing the Family Home: What to Do with All the Stuff?

How Much Do Movers Cost?

25 Stress-Busting Tips For Moving Day

Moving to a smaller home can be a game-changer for seniors. By finding the right space for retirement, you'll guarantee that you or your loved one will be able to live comfortably. We hope these resources help you find the space that's best for you.

Article by Andrea Needam, eldersday.org